JUNE FEATURED BACK HALL GALLERY ARTIST

MONICA JAROLD HIETSCH

Designer, Photographer and Oil Painter

As a graphic designer Monica is attracted to shape, line, texture and color. Logos, print ads and illustrations must have order for the viewers' eyes to follow from one corner of an advertisement to the other. This helps relay a message about a product or event. Ultimately some kind of feeling or emotion is experienced.

Her vision through a camera lens has always been seeking details. Details of the horizon, angles defining distance and color (or lack of color) creating that all important response from the viewer. With consideration for the past, present and future of her surroundings she tries to tell a story with each snap of the shutter.

When Monica picks up a palette knife and smears oil paint across a canvas she is relaying the message of how she views the world. Shapes are used to give dimension and perspective. Lines of various lengths and thicknesses are placed to give the painting a rhythm. Texture is layered on to evoke a reaction of calmness or urgency. Color is the most important part. Color is used to relay the feelings and emotions. Moody blues, sentimental yellows, fiery reds and every color in the rainbow give her paintings their true identity.

Monica first visualizes through her camera lens. Next, she picks the perfect shot that tells a story, maybe not a perfect photograph but it can be created into the perfect painting. She is inspired by the architecture of the city and awesome engineering of bridges. Streets lined with houses that are interpreted as more than bricks but somebody's home and their family history.

When a viewer takes a moment to look at one of Monica's photographs or paintings she hopes they feel her love of design and representational art. The time and care she puts into her craft is truly a view into her world.

A current collection of oil paintings titled "This Day and Age of Steel" will be featured along with a few past works in the Back Hall Gallery at the Cranberry Municipal Center this month with a reception Saturday, June 4 from 12 until 3:30.

She is also a featured artist at the fabulous Firebox Art Studios in Carnegie, PA fireboxartstudios@instagram.com
